

JTF-CS Command Briefing

JOINT TASK FORCE CIVIL SUPPORT

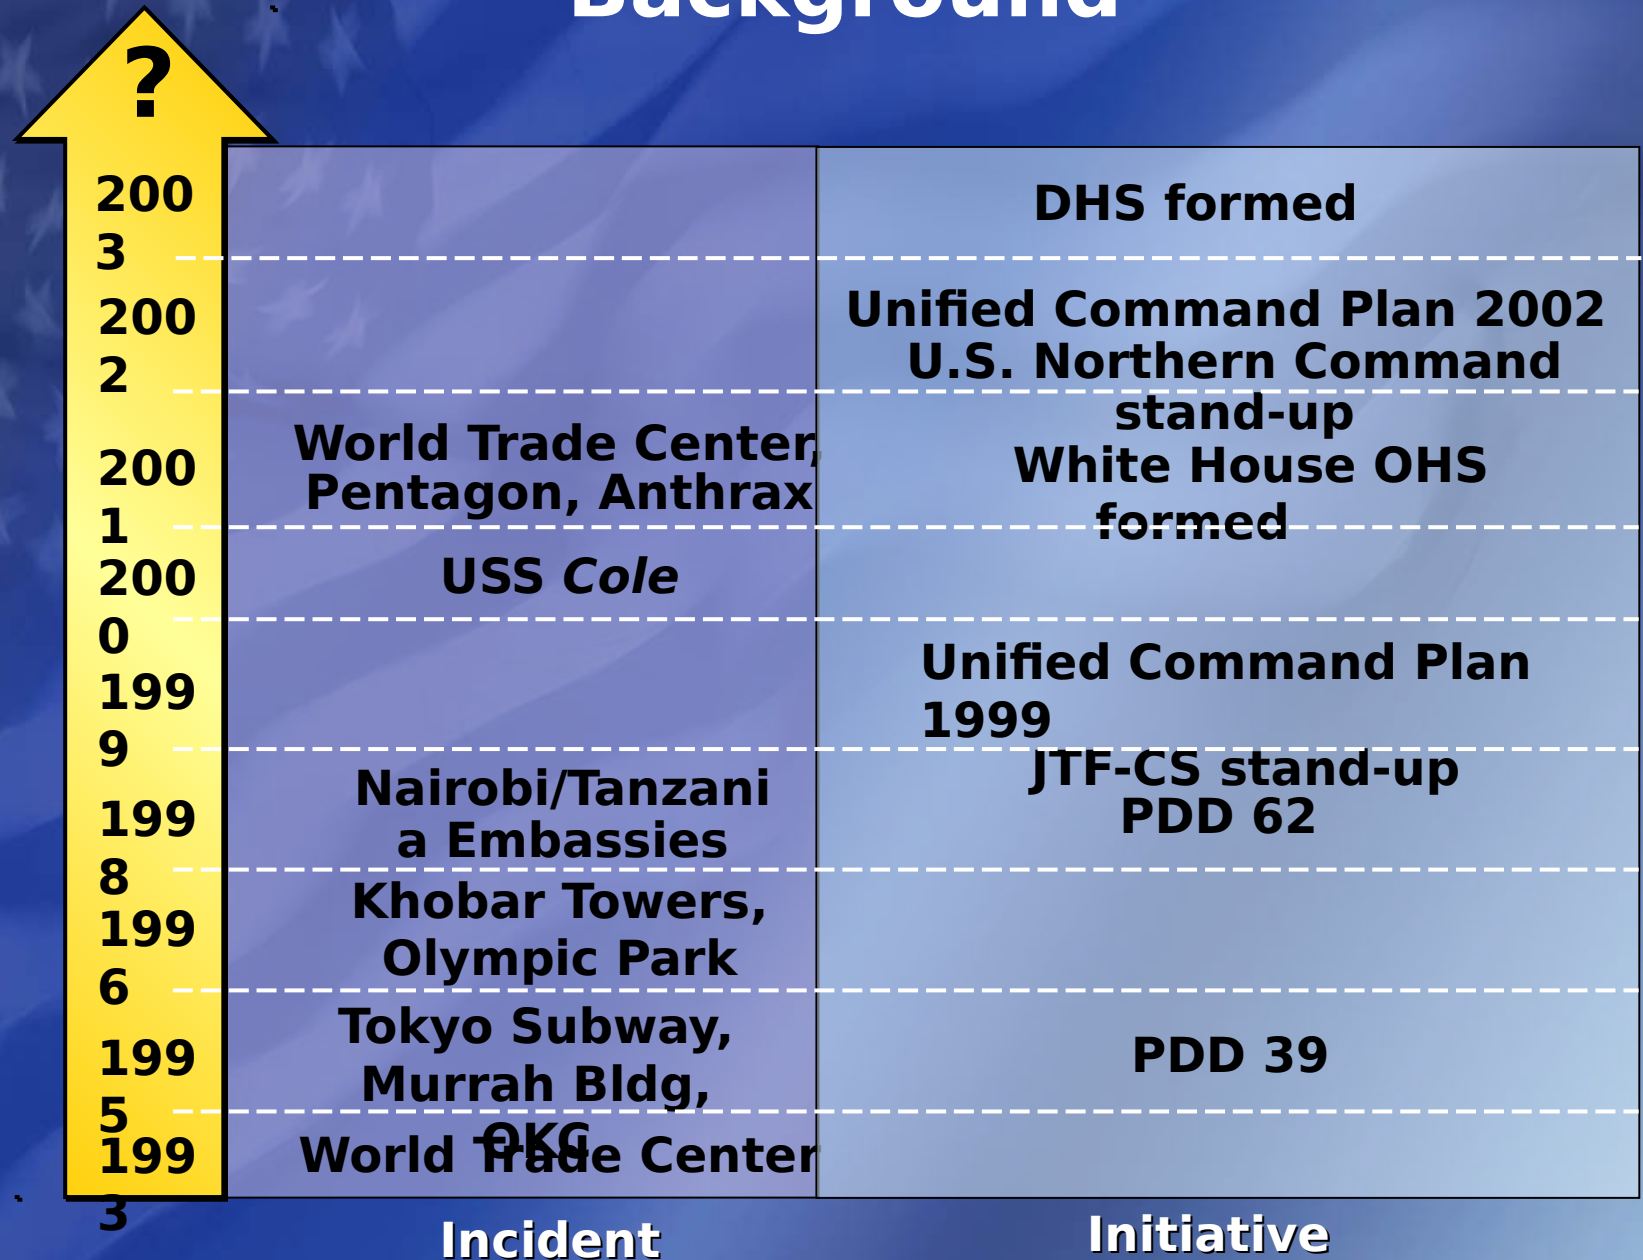

To Serve and Support

What is JTF-CS?

- A standing Joint Task Force HQ of approximately 160 military and civilian personnel at Fort Monroe, Virginia
- A deployable Command and Control headquarters for DoD units and personnel executing consequence management (CM) operations in response to a CBRNE incident
- Source of response plans for essential DoD support to the Lead Federal Agency

Background

Definition of CBRNE

- CBRNE is defined as a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or high-yield explosive situation or incident
- Incidents include industrial accidents, acts of nature, acts of war, or terrorism
- A Weapon of Mass Destruction (WMD) is a CBRNE device or material specifically designed to produce casualties or terror

Overarching DoD Principles

- Consistent with Constitution / Public Law
- Unequivocal civilian oversight / accountability
- Always in support of Lead Federal Agency (LFA)
- Emphasize DoD roles, skills, and structures
- Guard / Reserve are key players for Consequence Management (CM)
- JTF-CS cannot perform routine law enforcement

A Unique Mission

- DoD traditionally stands ready to assist state and local authorities in response to natural disasters
- Effective CBRNE response requires a very different set of resources, skills, and experience
 - Situational awareness
 - Pre-planning
 - Pre-identifying appropriate personnel and organizations

Mission Statement

JTF Civil Support plans and integrates DoD support to the designated Lead Federal Agency for domestic CBRNE consequence management. When directed by Commander USNORTHCOM, JTF-CS will deploy to the incident site and establish command and control of designated DoD forces to provide military assistance to civil authorities.
